

CITY TREASURER FACES SHORTAGE OF $26,000

Rahway Common Council in Lively Session Accuses Charles H. Angelman.

MAYOR NAMES SUCCESSOR

Finance Committee Discovered Discrepancy in Accounts Several Days Ago—Audit Co. Action Awaited.

(By Telegraph to The Tribune.)
Rahway, N. J., July 8.—Charles H. Angelman, treasurer of the City of Rahway, is short $26,000, according to the findings rendered by the Rahway Common Council last night at one of the liveliest meetings ever held by that body. Consternation reigned, and many present who had known Angelman socially and politically a dozen or more years refused to believe the report.

The meeting, a special one, was presided over by W. H. Williams, of the Universal Audit Company, of New York, which has been engaged for several weeks in examining the treasurer's books. The findings are:

"The cash account of the city as verified to June 20 calls for $54,471.89. The cash on hand amounts to $28,170.80, a difference of over $26,000."

The members of the council's finance committee, Messrs. Farrel, Valentine and Trembley, told of having become aware several days ago of a discrepancy, and of how work was done by the committee night and day to find where the discrepancy lay. No clue was found. Thereupon the members of the board decided to lay the matter before the Common Council.

The surety bond of Angelman is for $20,000, leaving the city unprotected for the balance of the loss. Angelman is a brother of Winfield S. Angelman, of Plainfield. He has lived in Rahway about fifteen years, holding many lucrative city offices. He became known as a leader and a hustler in whatever he undertook.

Previous to the meeting of the Common Council a conference between Angelman and President Williams of the auditing company was held behind closed doors. It is understood Angelman denied a shortage existed. Immediately following this conference Councilman Trembley asked Mayor Fyffe if he had any report to make. Mayor Fyffe replied "Yes," and gave the following communication to City Clerk C. H. Lambert:

"I deem it wise and necessary to appoint a successor to Mr. Angelman in the position of auditor and city treasurer. My best efforts will be directed to have a man in this position of trust in whom the people of Rahway will have confidence. I therefore appoint George S. Kirchgasner to the office to fill the unexpired term."

The action of the auditing company in the matter is awaited with deepest interest. It is thought it will be difficult for Angelman to raise the $26,000 for which amount the company is on his bond.

Trenton, N. J., July 8.—Vice-Chancellor Walker to-day ordered Winfield S. Angelman, a lawyer of Plainfield and brother of Charles H. Angelman, to make an immediate accounting of about $4,000 due to Miss Lydia P. Bullock, of whom he had for many years been the guardian and trustee. The proceedings were instituted by Miss Bullock to secure possession of a part of her estate which Angelman is alleged to have squandered.

STOLEN AUTOS FOUND

Five Cars Missing Here Are Recovered in Lakewood, N. J.

Five automobiles that were stolen in this city within the last few months have been found in Lakewood, N. J., according to George S. Dougherty, Deputy Police Commissioner. James Finlan, a detective who worked under the personal direction of Dougherty, received a tip that took him to Lakewood on Independence Day, and at Clayton's garage he found two of the cars. One belonging to Dr. Graeme Hammond, of No. 69 West 55th street, was stolen from in front of No. 136 West 52d street on May 13. It was valued at $7,000. The other car belonged to B. Stern, member of the drygoods firm of Stern Brothers.

The third car was owned by Edmund Dwight, who makes his home at the Brook Club, No. 7 East 46th street. It was stolen on June 9. It is worth $3,000. The car was taken to a garage at No. 39 Main street, Lakewood, and the men who left it there said they would be back in eight days.

William C. Shatto, a New Jersey detective, was chiefly responsible for the recovery of the other two cars, owned by L. D. Kenny, of No. 156 West 65th street, and J. C. Thomelson, of No. 45 West 57th street.

QUINLAN TAKEN TO PRISON

Judge Refuses Men Who Offer as $5,000 Bondsmen.

(By Telegraph to The Tribune.)
Paterson, N. J., July 8.—Several bondsmen presented themselves before Judge Klenert in the Court of Common Pleas this afternoon to give $5,000 bail for Patrick Quinlan, convicted 12 W. V. agitator, who was taken to Trenton to-day to begin a sentence of from two to seven years for inciting to assault, but none of the bondsmen was acceptable and no action was taken in the matter.

Although the writ of error obtained for the review of Quinlan's case is returnable July 23, it cannot be reviewed until the November term of the Supreme Court, and Quinlan will have to remain in prison until that time, unless the necessary bail is obtained and a writ of habeas corpus procured.

SAW MAN JUMP FROM BRIDGE.

James Bangelder, captain of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company tug No. 9, reported to the police yesterday afternoon that he had seen a man jump off the Manhattan Bridge. The captain said he steamed his boat to the spot as the body disappeared. He found a hat in the water with the initials "J. F." in the inner band.

SHOT DROPS NEAR WILSON

Projectile Said to Have Scared Mayflower's Crew.

Norfolk, Va., July 8.—The yacht Mayflower, with President Wilson on board, came near being struck by a projectile last Thursday while steaming up the Potomac to Washington, according to reports received here. The shell was fired from the Indian Head proving grounds, and is said to have fallen close to the Mayflower. It was fired, reports say, from a 15-inch gun that was being tested. The President is said not to have lost his composure. He is quoted as saying, however, that the testing of guns in the Potomac was dangerous to navigation.

Washington, July 8.—While both the officers of the Mayflower and officials of the Navy Department were reticent to-day concerning the "near accident" to the President's yacht last week, it is believed an investigation of the affair will be ordered. It was declared to-day that the shell itself passed over the Mayflower at a safe height, but that the danger was caused by the dislodgment from the shell of the rotating band, a circle of steel twelve inches wide, which fell close to the vessel. So loud was the screech of the shot that the Mayflower's crew are said to have rushed on deck to ascertain the trouble.

DUFFY GETS THREE YEARS

Police Sergeant Smiles as Court Announces Sentence.

Peter J. Duffy, former police sergeant, convicted as "collector" for the late Captain Thomas Walsh, was sentenced yesterday to serve three to four years by Justice Seabury in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court. Duffy was convicted of bribery on July 2.

He was accused of receiving $30 a month for "protection" from Julius Roth, the proprietor of a poker room in Harlem. Duffy strode into court swinging his straw hat jauntily. There was a smile on his face, and it stayed there while he remained in the courtroom. It took less than ten minutes to call Duffy to the bar, deny the motions made in his behalf by Abraham Levy, his counsel, and sentence him to hard labor in state prison.

With the same firm tread with which he had entered the room, Duffy walked out. Sheriff Harbarger, who was on hand in case Duffy should be sent to Sing Sing, had hard work to keep up. The Sheriff's services were not needed, as Justice Seabury granted a motion for a ten days' stay. Duffy's lawyer will apply for a certificate of reasonable doubt.

FROMME CASH TO CLERK

Will Give Half Fortune to "Faithful Friend."

One-half the estate of Herman Fromme, a lawyer, who died June 28, goes to Thomas J. Burke, a "faithful friend and confidential clerk." Mr. Fromme's will was filed in the Surrogate's Court yesterday. His estate was valued at more than $1,000 in real estate and more than $5,000 in personal property.

Out of the one-half left to Mr. Burke, the testator expressed the wish, but did not impose it as an obligatory provision, that the beneficiary distribute one-quarter of the property left to him among relatives and friends of Mr. Fromme, whom he had indicated to Mr. Burke while alive. The testator left one-eighth of his estate to his brother, Isaac Fromme, former Register of New York; one-eighth to his son, Harry Fromme, and one-quarter to a daughter, Miss Helene Fromme.

STILWELL SING SING SHY

Convicted Senator Requests Another Week in Tombs.

Stephen J. Stilwell, the convicted Senator from The Bronx, asked District Attorney Whitman yesterday to consent to his remaining in the Tombs another week. Stilwell sent his counsel, State Senator McClelland, to plead with the District Attorney.

McClelland's visit to the District Attorney was regarded as significant, for he immediately after Stilwell announced that he was ready to confess, declared that his client had nothing to confess and would go to Sing Sing.

Stilwell refused to comment on the story, published exclusively in The Tribune yesterday, telling how two emissaries of Tammany Hall had visited him at the Tombs, giving fictitious names and addresses to the authorities at the jail, and urged Stilwell not to confess to the District Attorney.

LEDERLE IGNORES STORM

Health Commissioner Silent Over "Break" with Bensel.

ROW STIRS EMPLOYEES

Sanitary Superintendent's Auto Visits Health Offices, but He Fails to Appear.

The Department of Health was wrought up yesterday as it has not been since Health Commissioner Lederle, during the Low administration, in 1892, threw out 157 Tammany employees. The cause of the present excitement, as was told exclusively in yesterday's Tribune, was the result of a final "break" between the Commissioner and Dr. Walter Bensel, Sanitary Superintendent.

The trouble had been expected by the department employees for a long time, but when brought home to a realization of it the big force sat up and took notice. It was the one topic of discussion.

Commissioner Lederle maintained his silence, and so effective was his example that ordinarily talkative employees shook their heads and walked away when there was a reference made to the row.

As for Dr. Bensel, frequent inquiries at his office were met with the answer that he would be back in half an hour, or an hour at the latest. This announcement held good from 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon to 5 o'clock, when the offices were closed for the night. At the closing hour the Sanitary Superintendent's automobile drove in sight. As it stopped the chauffeur leaned out of his car and in a low tone accosted a sanitary patrolman.

"Is Dr. B. in?"
Some skin was given and the chauffeur jumped out of the car and entered the building. A moment later he emerged with the superintendent's secretary. There was an exchange of smiles and the chauffeur drove off alone and the secretary went in another direction.

While there were no outward developments yesterday, there was every indication that the big fight of the Lederle administration was on. Dr. Bensel's acquaintances consider him a fighter and believe he has a great deal of influence.

Others, however, point to the fact that Mayor Gaynor has invariably stood by his Health Commissioner. When Police Commissioner Waldo and Dr. O'Connell tried to reinstate discharged employees over the veto of Dr. Lederle they failed. Only once since that time has Commissioner Waldo ever attended a Board of Health meeting. His absence began after the Health Commissioner had seen Mayor Gaynor.

The Health Department employees were as a rule reticent yesterday regarding the affair, but several indicated their sympathies were absolutely with the Commissioner.

NADOLSKY IS NOW NODELL

Court Relieves Young Man of Annoyance at the Telephone.

Nathaniel-Lee Nadolsky is a student in the New York University School of Commerce. One of the first things he learned was that his name was not suited to the ways of commerce, and he obtained permission from Justice Giegerich yesterday to change it to NodeLL, because the young man believed it would facilitate matters a whole lot.

Nadolsky said that his name was a source of annoyance to him, especially when he telephoned. He said it used to take him two minutes to make the person at the other end of the line understand who was talking. The petitioner said this was also a source of financial loss to him.

CHILD FALLS OFF TRAIN

Two-Year-Old Lad Drops from Car Window and May Die.

Plainfield, N. J., July 8.—Climbing to the window of a Philadelphia & Reading express train as it was passing through Lincoln, N. J., about noon to-day, John W. Gately, the two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Gately, of St. Clair, Penn., lost his balance and fell out to the tracks.

The train was stopped and backed to the spot where the accident took place. The child was picked up unconscious and was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital, this city. He had many broken bones and concussion of the brain and will probably die. The Gately family were on their way from Philadelphia to New York, and were going to Fall River to spend the summer.

PRIEST BARS SLIT SKIRTS

Won't Administer Sacrament to "Scantily Clad" Women.

Meriden, Conn., July 8.—Beginning Sunday, women whom the Rev. James Conlin, of St. Rose's Catholic Church, of this city, believes to be immodest or too scantily clad will be barred from the sacrament at the altar. Father Conlin made the announcement to-day. He said he believed it was his duty as a priest to refuse Holy Communion to women in slit skirts or girls wearing low-cut or peek-a-boo waists.

Father Conlin, who came here from New Haven, created a sensation a few months ago when he forbade the women of his parish attending mass wearing low-cut dresses and denouncing the wearing of women of male attire at dances. "This Church of God is neither a ballroom nor a recreation pier," said Father Conlin. "I have no objection to women wearing good, decent clothes to church, but it is high time to call a halt when they appear before me in things that are mere apologies for sleeves, a wisp of cloth and a yard of nothing. Much of the modern day immorality is caused by the disregard of women for modesty and self-respect."

When the Mayor appeared before the film exhibitors in the afternoon at Grand Central Palace the cheers which greeted him as the "next Mayor of New York" and "President of the United States" encouraged him to tell them how he had always been their friend. His opposition to a film censorship proposed by those people "whose virtue is more exalted than that of the rest of us" came in for particular applause.

"Of course, each one of those people who favored the censorship," he said, "thought I would appoint him censor, so that he could see all the pictures and decide what he would let us see. I know one of them whose head is away up in the clouds, in the northeast corner of the Milky Way and Aurora Borealis, from which place he goes peering around like 'Peeping Tom' of Coventry,' meddling with other people's business."

"But now that we have succeeded in having an ordinance passed, the moving picture places here will be properly watched, not improperly watched. That upholds the right of the people to see what they like, and I am sure that if any manager of a moving picture theatre showed an indecent film that kind of a show wouldn't live a week in this moral town of New York."

ROOSEVELT BY THE FOOT

Film of African Hunter Cost 20 Cents for Twelve Inches.

"I paid 20 cents for each foot of Roosevelt," was the startling information given to Edmund Hacker, special examiner yesterday in the hearing of the government's case against the Motion Picture Patents Company, by William Devery, head of the Imperial Film Exchange, of this city. He was speaking of a film showing Roosevelt in Africa.

The witness was explaining the cancellation of his contract with the licensing company, after a dispute in Washington. "The trouble arose at the time of the Roosevelt-African race," said he.

"What's that last part?" asked Examiner Hacker, who was also acting as stenographer.

"Roosevelt, President Roosevelt," replied Devery. "Don't you know? Roosevelt in Africa."

"Oh, yes; now I understand," said the examiner.

"Yes, I paid 20 cents for each foot of Roosevelt," continued the witness. "Then it cost you only 40 cents altogether?" said one of the attorneys for the defence, and the crowd laughed.

TEST FOR BRONX VOTERS

Friendly Suit to Settle Status in City Court Election.

Corporation Counsel Watson has suggested a friendly action to have the Appellate Division determine whether the law creating Bronx County is so framed as to prevent voters in the new county from taking part in the election of a justice of the City Court next fall.

The Corporation Counsel submitted the matter directly to the Appellate Division yesterday. The nominal plaintiff is John A. De Leyer, an enrolled Republican, who lives at No. 73 East 219th street. The Board of Elections and Corporation Counsel Watson are the defendants.

De Leyer asks for a mandamus restraining the Board of Elections from accepting nominations made in Bronx County for a City Court justice, to be voted on at the primaries in September, and from canvassing the vote in Bronx County for that office.

ANHUT FIGHTS DISBARMENT

Appeals Through Counsel Pending Decision of Court.

Counsel for John N. Anhut, the attorney who was convicted of bribery in connection with the attempt to have Harry K. Thaw released before the Appellate Division yesterday to have the court defer action on the disbarment of Anhut, Frank Hendrick, who appeared for Anhut, said that an appeal was pending and that the Supreme Court had granted a certificate of reasonable doubt. He said that witnesses for the prosecution contradicted themselves in important details.

GAYNOR'S TALKS RANGE FROM FILMS TO FINNS

Mayor Equally at Home Addressing Educators and Moving Picture Men.

MEETS RUSSIAN VISITORS

Mayor Gaynor's versatility as a speaker had another test yesterday, when he made two addresses in which he ranged all the way from the condition of a film censor in New York. In the first address he talked to sixty-six Russian educators, who are in this country to study American educational problems. The Mayor paid his compliments to the Russian system of technical instruction. In the second he addressed the delegates to the Moving Picture Exhibitors' League of America, telling them what he really thought about those New Yorkers who wanted moving picture films censored.

The Mayor received the Russian visitors, who include twenty-two women and who came from Moscow, at the City Hall in the morning. They were introduced to him by William Marble, president of the Merchants' Association, and were accompanied by John H. Snodgrass, United States Consul General at Moscow, and S. C. Mead, secretary of the Merchants' Association. They included journalists and professional men in addition to educators. The party plans to study our social and institutional life in American colleges and cities.

"The point in which our educational methods are deficient," the Mayor told the delegates, "is in technical instruction. We are now waking to the fact that of all things educational technical education is the most important. Heretofore our boys have been encouraged to believe that they will know how to do pretty much everything without learning to do anything. We all know that is not so. They must learn to do something useful. I understand that your Educational Alliance is following that idea in Russia, and you are right."

The presence in the party of the twenty-two women drew from the Mayor a reference to Prince Kropotkin's book, which he said he had read a year ago, in which the author declares there are more women graduates from universities in Russia than from any other country in the world.

"That speaks for itself," he said. "Then, too, there is Finland. The most advanced country in Europe. Women have not a vote yet in this state, but the Legislature of Finland is half full of women elected to that body."

When the Mayor appeared before the film exhibitors in the afternoon at Grand Central Palace the cheers which greeted him as the "next Mayor of New York" and "President of the United States" encouraged him to tell them how he had always been their friend. His opposition to a film censorship proposed by those people "whose virtue is more exalted than that of the rest of us" came in for particular applause.

"Of course, each one of those people who favored the censorship," he said, "thought I would appoint him censor, so that he could see all the pictures and decide what he would let us see. I know one of them whose head is away up in the clouds, in the northeast corner of the Milky Way and Aurora Borealis, from which place he goes peering around like 'Peeping Tom' of Coventry,' meddling with other people's business."

WON'T CALL EXTRA SESSION

Fielder Refuses Plea of Jersey City Commissioners.

Governor Fielder has refused the plea of the Jersey City Commissioners to convene the Legislature in special session to amend the commission government act and clarify their titles, which have been attacked by the Wittpennites who were ousted by the adoption of the act. The Governor bases his refusal on economic grounds. The recent special session cost $90,000, and he is adverse to adding to the state's burden.

The Wittpennites are elated at the decision, as they are confident that their appeal to Attorney General to institute quo warranto proceedings to test the adoption in Jersey City of the act will be granted. They are confident also of winning in court, because of the defect in the act relating to the number of votes needed to adopt.

BOMB IN THE BRONX.

Tenement House Tenants Flee in Terror, but None Is Hurt.

A bomb was exploded early this morning in front of the shoe store of Lorenzo Prevenzano, on the ground floor of the five-story tenement house at No. 34 East 16th street, The Bronx. Many windows were broken; the tenants of the house jumped from their beds and scattered to the roof, fire escapes and the street as they were. No one was injured and no arrests were made. Prevenzano, according to the police, has never received any Black Hand letters.

The cries of the Morrisania station were called out to quiet the neighborhood. The damage was principally to windows.

LAW STILL HAS NERVE

Will Jump from Aeroplane Despite His Broken Bones.

Rodman Law, who after he had jumped off East River bridges and been shot from a skyrocket sustained serious injuries in falling from a wagon on Sunday, is under contract to jump from a biplane at a height of 2,000 feet at Coney Island Thursday. He said last night at his home in Brooklyn that he intended to fulfill the contract and make the jump with a parachute, although his collarbone, right shoulder and right elbow are broken.

Law was injured while performing for a moving picture company at Fort Lee when a wheel came off a wagon in which he was riding. He felt much mortified at being hurt in such a manner. One of his feats was a jump that he took from the torch of the Statue of Liberty.

RICH MAN IN JAIL, SAYS CAN'T PAY WIFE

Auto Dealer, Living in Riverside Drive, Must Give Bond to Get Free in Queens County.

DESERPTION IS CHARGE

Flashily Dressed Husband Who, It Is Alleged, Failed to Support Family, Attracts Crowd to "Bastille."

Sheriff Desmond of Queens County sat on the steps of the county jail last night whittling a stick and whistling glibly. Supreme content shone on his face as every little while he glanced over his shoulder and looked into the doorway of the jail with an air of proprietorship.

"Hello, Bill," said "Slim" Hoskins, the town wit, slouching up to where the Sheriff sat, "got any big 'uns in the coop to-night?"

Sheriff Desmond went on whittling, then opened wide his mouth, yawned and sprayed a quid of "hearts and flowers" on the sidewalk, never glancing toward "Slim," or appearing aware of his presence.

"Oh, nothin' much," "Slim" got a horse thief, a hobo, a couple o' drunks and such like. Oh, by the way, got a millionaire, too, flashy dresser and all that, yup."

Two minutes after "Slim" had got the news from the Sheriff of Long Island and had gathered about the doors of the Queens County Jail, all of whom were beseeching the Sheriff to let them "have one look." The Sheriff frowned sternly, however, and spoke loftily about "my official duty to the county and the people."

The occasion which caused the best dressed prisoner ever seen in Queens County to be an inmate of the jail last night took place in the afternoon in the Rockaway court.

Benjamin M. Weil, an automobile dealer, living at No. 224 Riverside Drive, Manhattan, appeared in court as the defendant in an action brought by his wife, Dora, who told Magistrate Fitch her husband had deserted her last August and since that time had only contributed $100 to the support of herself and child. Weil had an income of $12,000 a year at that time, Mrs. Weil said. She charged him with abandonment.

Weil seemed to take the affair nonchalantly. He wore an intensely bored expression, besides faultlessly cut clothes and jewelry. After Mrs. Weil had recited her tale of woe Weil took the stand and denied his wife's statements. He said he was "broke" and could not contribute more to her support.

Magistrate Fitch, after listening to evidence on both sides, ordered Weil to pay his wife $30 a week for a year or furnish a bond of $1,500 to insure the payments.

"You might as well make it $500 a week, your Honor," said Weil, lightly. He went on to say he was not making enough money to support his wife.

Former Judge Herman Joseph, who appeared as Mrs. Weil's counsel, interposed the remark at this point that Weil's family could put up a bond for $3,000,000, if they wished.

The magistrate then ordered Sheriff Desmond to take Weil to the Queens County jail, there to remain until he gave a bond for the weekly payments to Mrs. Weil.

The defendant was visibly surprised and busied himself all of last night in trying to secure a bondsman, but this morning he was still a guest of Sheriff Desmond's.

CONSUL HAS CHARLTON

Court Issues Mandate Calling for Extradition.

The extradition of Porter Charlton, the young American who killed his bride in their villa at Lake Como, Italy, in June, 1910, and for three years has fought his return to an Italian dungeon, awaits the pleasure of G. Fara Forni, the Italian Consul General in New York, into whose hands will be placed to-day a copy of the "mandate" of the United States Supreme Court directing Sheriff N. P. Wedin of Hudson County, N. J., to surrender Charlton "forthwith" to a representative of the "King of Italy."

Signor Forni explained yesterday that Charlton would not leave his jail quarters until the arrival of the Italian gendarmes, or police, who are on their way from Milan for the purpose of guarding the prisoner during his trip across the ocean.

MACMONNIES MAY QUIT

Believed Daniel C. French Will Complete Booth Monument.

While the Booth Memorial Committee of the Players' Club has received no official notice from the American sculptor, Frederick W. MacMonnies, announcing his resignation of the commission given him some five years ago for the design and execution of a monument to Edwin Booth, to be erected in Gramercy Park, it is generally conceded by the members that his resignation will be received in due time, and that another American sculptor will get the commission.

Although it is not definitely announced as yet, it is probable that the commission will go to Daniel Chester French, whose best known work is "The Minute Man at Concord," in Concord, Mass.

SECRET COURTHOUSE SESSION.

The circular courthouse design of Guy Lowell was discussed in secret session yesterday at the rooms of the Courthouse Board. The meeting lasted two hours, and at its conclusion no announcement was made. It was a joint meeting of members of the board and a committee of the Supreme Court justices. Borough President McAneny and Walter Cook, president of the American Institute of Architects and consulting architect for the board, as well as Guy Lowell, were present.

DEATH RATE LOWER

Heat Killed 19 in Week, Health Board Reports.

The weekly mortality report of the Department of Health, issued yesterday, shows nineteen deaths directly attributable to the recent hot weather, as against only one death from the same cause in the corresponding week a year ago.

Infant mortality, despite the adverse conditions, was 14 per cent below that of the same period in 1912. The decrease was noticeable principally in Manhattan and Brooklyn.

There were reported last week 1,291 deaths, with a death rate of 12.54 per 1,000 inhabitants, as against 1,273 deaths with a rate of 12.51 last year.
